

Yes, a miracle has happened. Geoff Hopkins has managed to arrange a social event that actually went with a bit of a swing. Family Golf Day at the Inter-Continental Golf Club in October proved to be quite a success. Following a closely fought tournament, players and their support teams enjoyed a barbecue afterwards and generally a good time was had by all.

Despite the photographic evidence, John Freel maintains that he did not spend the day on the beach as was muted by his playing partners and pulled through to win one of the prizes. Mick Brown took the yellow jersey however with round of 33.

Both Duncan Glover (Above Left) and Ian Dearmer (Above Right) both displayed considerable style in their approach play, but neither seemed to enjoy quite as much success as their playing partners.

Barbara Kent (Above Left) & Liz Dugan (Above Right) both managed to find a bit of rough on a few of the holes but not so much as to prevent Barbara winning one of the coveted packets of three.
(A golfing term....Ed.)

Roger Sykes (Right) had to keep checking his arithmetic as though he couldn't quite believe it! Mind you, he played half the holes off the white markers which might have been the reason for his non appearance on the leader board. On the other hand his wife Brigitte displayed a more relaxed approach to the game (which won her the ladies competition) which might have had something to do with it.

No names no pack drill, but yes that is a ball in the tree, and no he didn't hit it out!

Elsewhere on the course, both Lyla Mattock (Above) and Barry Threlfall kept their eyes on the ball, though Barry's watchful eye seemed to be accompanied by more hope than glory.
