

UK GOSSIP

Brother Harry, according to the Daily Mail has revealed that he thinks his hair is too ginger in the newly unveiled royal portrait of him and his brother. In the painting by artist Nicky Philipps, the pair are 'imagined' in royal chatting to each other in Clarence House before attending the Trooping The Colour ceremony in 2008.

and wages received during the tour will go to Help for Heroes. By the start of the year, Bethan had already raised over £11,000.

Another lass in the news with her charity efforts is The One Show host Christine Bleakley. "Adrian Chiles is nothing more than a big brother and rumours that we have had a relationship are false" the TV presenter has stated in a recent interview. While people are constantly questioning whether there is anything going on between the pair, The One Show host has insisted that they are very much just friends.

The pretty Northern Irish presenter told Glamour magazine that people either seem to believe that they hate each other or having an affair, when both views are far from the truth. She also reveals secrets on her real relationship with the Chelsea and England footballer Frank Lampard.

Although she is enjoying her time with Frank, she told the publication that she does not consider herself to be a WAG and is not particularly interested in football.

Staying with the troops for a moment, Gail Kasper's sexy bikini poster has apparently become one of the most sought after pin-ups in Iraq, after she posed for it at a charity drive for her local military base. 45 year old Gail is an in-demand US television personality and the reigning Ms. Continental America. Ms Kasper doesn't appear in the Pinup for Heroes calendar though.

As this page was being prepared, Christine had just completed a Sports Relief challenge to water ski across the English Channel. A complete novice, Christine stayed on her skis for more than an hour as she made the 22-mile journey, facing the wake created by the sea traffic of the world's busiest shipping channel raising £400,000 in the process.

Also hot off the press today was the news that John Cleese had struck up a new romance with jewellery designer Jennifer Wade. 70 year old Cleese, whose divorce from Alyce Eichelberger reportedly cost him £12 million was seen in Bath with Jennifer, who is said to be in her 30's.

Having opened with a credit to Private Eye, I'd better close with one too, although how they get away with some of their stuff I'll never know.

"Soon to be seen all over the country," says The Eye, "young hopefuls are desperate to become the next footballers bit on the side. But who has got what it takes to triumph as a world famous slapper? Join judge Ashley as he auditions the young wannabees who are determined to live the dream, go on a journey and sell their story to Max Clifford."

The Calendar idea was simple; create a 2010 calendar recreating the style of the 1940's and 50's with all the proceeds going straight to Help for Heroes. So far sales have resulted in more than £5500 being raised for the charity.

The charity itself was in the news in March when 220 runners out of the 15000 participating in the annual Bath Half Marathon were running to support the charity.

Not quite hitting the headlines but most certainly worth a mention is Bethan Myfanwy Hughes. Nicknamed the 'Angel of the Battlefield' Bethan is currently showing her support for the Help for Heroes charity with a UK Harp tour finishing in August 2010. All donations, proceeds